The SoHo Arts Network Announces Downtown Culture Talks

SoHo Arts Network (SAN) is pleased to present the Downtown Culture Talks, a series of public programs.

This series of discussions explores various aspects of downtown Manhattan's rich cultural history and legacy. Following SAN's Downtown Culture Walk last spring, the Downtown Culture Talk series furthers the network's commitment to fostering the arts in the neighborhood through public programs that celebrate and examine its local cultural history.

Presented by the SAN at apexart, The Drawing Center, and The Renee & Chaim Gross Foundation, the Downtown Culture Talks explores the personal histories and lived experiences of female artists active in downtown Manhattan beginning in the early 1960s through the present moment. Participants include artists Judith Bernstein, Jane Dickson, Jackie Ferrara, Mimi Gross, Becky Howland, and curator Alison M. Gingeras. All events are free and open to the public.
